

This week, mainly, we all worked on the presentation.

We shared the workload for the presentation and I and Guven took the technical details to be delivered to the audience. We eliminated/simplified some of these details in order not to bore the listeners.

We divided these information and integrated them in the presentation speech.

We also added the screenshots of the mobile application into the slides.