In the first meeting we have planned the week. I have searched the web and compare the feature lists of programs up to the second meeting. In the second meeting we shared the information that we had gathered before. We talked about the website in the second meeting. We decided the scope of our project. At the third meeting we collected the data that we had gathered and we wrote the weekly report together.

This week as PAGODA group members we have done three meetings. In these meetings firstly we have spoken about what we have to do, up to the second meeting I searched the internet, try all demos, and full version programs that are available on the net. I also made a website for the project group. In the third meeting we wrote the reports of this week.

This week I mainly worked on searching the web. After that, I downloaded some other simulation programs and examined them. Most of the time I thought about the context of the project, my mind is a little bit confused about which topic to choose, but after we made some meetings and after we talked over the project recommendations, we chose the our project concept. In the third meeting we wrote the weekly report.
