07.04.2008-13.04.2008 Weekly Report 6

At the end of previous week we have made an interview with the client. This week, we thought over client's needs and requirements, and thought about how we can improve/change our design to meet our client's needs. We have abandoned some parts of the project (such as main gui), and planned&reviewed our algorithms on how we can use the knowledge of the doctor to interoperate with the data we extract from the reports.

Although the needs of the client was different from our design, we continued on our plans for this week (so we won't pause the project until we decide on algorithms&needs), we designed some java interfaces & classes for complex query parser, did a rewrite of some parts of the code that did not work well, and implemented a few small classes such as report decomposer.

This week we mostly made some auditing on what we have done, and we planned next week's tasks and future plans for the project.
